With more than 270 million passengers passing through the top 40 UK airports each year, the unique and business critical environment that exists within the UK's airport sector is clearly evident.

The continued growth in passenger numbers, predicted to rise to 290 million by 2030, will only serve to increase the airport owner's requirement to ensure their Fire, Life Safety and Security systems are maintained to the highest possible standards.

In these unique business environments, and with the aforementioned growth in passenger numbers, installing the correct systems to deliver business continuity is of the highest priority.
